be says. "We do not spend too much during the week, but the weekends are different. We love to relax at home, have a good meal and spoil our pet cat and dog."

Armani holds instant appeal. "My view of fashion is that the clothing collections are classic," she reflects. "These are added to my existing collection each time I choose to invest in clothes that are made, with quality fabrics." And now, Armani's fashion philosophies find their way into Armani Casa. "I think Armani is a natural extension to Armani," she says. "I collect pieces to add to what we have as we continue to renovate our home. Armani Casa is like the clothing - these are quality investments for the home."

In her residence, Lambe and her husband have selected pieces that tone with the modern design. We love the warm light through the lamp shades, and also because we have a lot of red cushions, so the lamps are very complimentary." Lambe also chose a sleek, beautifully designed and leather-upholstered coffee table. "It's the new home for our contemporary Colin Heaney glass sculpture!" she beams, adding that the table is her single favourite piece. "We also love the comfy, silk embroidered cushions" she says. "They're perfectly comfortable for a lazy Sunday, lounging around in the house." Not that Lambe's Sundays are always lazy. "We do have a lot of artists coming to stay when they're visiting Hong Kong," she reveals, "so at times the house becomes something of an artists' community." For a woman on the frontline of Asia's artistic and cultural scene, you would expect nothing less.
